President's Message:

Fellow Compatriots & Friends…Don't Miss the annual Thin Blue Line Recognition Ceremony honoring our local law enforcement professionals, and featuring a special police dog demonstration by the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office K-9 Unit!

The March meeting was very exceptional including a special presentation by international author James Gabler with a compelling review of dinners at the white house with Thomas Jefferson.

We honored Compatriot and Past President Ed Buckley with a Certificate of Appreciation and Chapter 80th Anniversary Commemorative Coin for his historic support of the Chapter and in recognition of receiving the prestigious SAR Patriot Medal by the State society.

Compatriot Buckley has supported the SAR for over 20 years, served as Chapter President 2006-2007, is member of the FLSSAR Veterans Battalion and is a WW-2 Veteran.

Buckley's Patriot Medal will be presented at the May 19-20 Board of Management Meeting in Orlando. All Compatriots are encouraged to attend the presentation in honor of the "Chapter's Own" Compatriot Edward Buckley IV.

The Chapter is a historic supporter of our Nation's Veterans. Over 20% of our members are veterans and we encourage all Compatriots who served in the military to provide us with a copy of their DD-214 to be recognized with an SAR Military Service Medal.

In support of our Veterans, four Chapter Compatriots volunteered and were selected to serve as Veteran Guardians for WW-2 and Korean War veterans on the April 8, 2017 Southeast Veterans Honor Flight to Washington DC.

Compatriots Lanman, Tidwell, Curry, and Van Otteren will serve as escorts for these war veterans to visit historic monuments and tributes to our fallen veterans in the Nation's Capital.

All Compatriots are encouraged to join fellow members and the Chapter Women's Auxiliary to greet the Honor Flight on its return at the West Palm Beach International Airport on April 8 at 7:30 pm.

The Chapter provided a heartfelt remembrance for Compatriots Henry Michael "Mike" Burkhardt and Donald Eugene Moore at the March meeting. The Chapter will also submit the names of our departed Compatriots to both State and National Societies to be inscribed on the SAR Rolls of Remembrance and Respect.

A custom Palm Beach Chapter Commemorative Challenge Coin is now available in recognition and honor of the Chapter's 80th year. Cast in historic Blue and Gold, the striking bronze coin commemorates the founding of the Palm Beach Chapter in 1938.

The coin lists the four major revolutionary war battles waged in Florida with an illustration of a Minuteman guarding Florida and the state moto of "In God We Trust" inscribed on side one. Represented on the reverse side of this impressive coin is the iconic NSSAR Logo.

The custom Palm Beach Commemorative anniversary coins are designed for special guests, patriotic occasions, and are available for purchase at $10 each.

A major Chapter goal is membership development and mentoring of new members.

With the natural turnover of members, we need all Compatriots to help grow our membership with civic-minded individuals interested in supporting our constitution, honoring our patriot ancestors and good fellowship.

So please, get involved and help grow our membership by enrolling your Sons and Grandsons, inviting friends and neighbors to join and encouraging wives, daughters, and granddaughters to join the DAR and Chapter Women's Auxiliary.

Committee members are needed to support our many youth and civic programs including Flag Certificates, Liberty Tree Program, Medals/Awards, Veterans Programs, Newsletter, Publicity, High School/Youth Programs, Boy Scouts, JROTC, Rumbaugh Historical Oration and Knight Essay Contests, Police-Firefighters-EMS Service Awards, Chapter Events, Americanism-Patriot Bios, Audit, Membership Development, Officer Nomination, Speakers Bureau, Website Support, Fundraising/Endowment Programs.

Another Chapter goal is to expand relationships and joint event activity with all of the local DAR Chapters. We welcome our Patriot Daughters to all Chapter meetings and events, and sincerely appreciate their new member referrals and related support.

Compatriots we need "Gift Baskets" for our meeting raffles to raise funds to support our many Youth programs. All donors are acknowledged at meetings, included in the newsletter, and are recognized in the Chapter's Presidents Brigade.

Please help us avoid losing money on the chapter luncheons by attending and bringing guests!

The hotel requires a minimum number of guests to cover the room, food, and services, so when attendance is low or there are no shows, the Chapter must pay the difference.

Fellow Compatriots, I look forward to seeing you at our next meeting! Please, join me in honoring our nations Veterans, Patriot Ancestors, and especially our Dear Departed Compatriots.

God Bless You and God Bless the United States of America.

Feature Article

Paul Revere….Truth-Fiction-Fact

By Samuel A. (Buddy) Miller, Palm Beach Chapter Past President & Historian

"Listen my children and you shall hear
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere.
On the eighteenth of April, in Seventy-five,
Hardly a man is now alive who remembers that famous day and year."

Almost everybody recognizes the opening stanza of "Paul Revere's Ride," the stirring poem written by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in 1861. The poem was so popular that generations of schoolchildren were required to memorize the lines.

Nevertheless, during Revere's life his role in the events of that evening were not looked upon by him or his contemporaries as being particular noteworthy. It would take Longfellow's poem written more than 40 years after Revere's death to bring him such fame and glory.

Writers and poets frequently use what is commonly known as "literary license" when creating their written works. Longfellow was no exception, taking many liberties with the events of the evening in penning "Paul Revere's Ride." His greatest shortcoming was giving sole credit to Paul Revere for the achievement of alerting the countryside of the British plans to march to Lexington and Concord.

In reality, there were at least three riders and unquestionably many others who alerted colonist throughout the countryside after the initial warning.

Paul Revere was born in late December 1734 in Boston, the son of a French Huguenot father who had entered Massachusetts Bay around 1716.

His father, Apollos Rivoire, came to Boston from Germany at the age of thirteen and there was apprenticed to a silversmith. Securing his own shop, he was able to marry Deborah Hichborn, a member of a long-standing merchant family.

About this time, he anglicized his name to Paul Revere. Young Paul, one of twelve children, worked in his father's trade and when his father died in 1754, he continued the silver trade while his mother managed the business.

He served briefly as a second lieutenant in an artillery regiment during the French and Indian War. Upon leaving the army, Revere returned to Boston and assumed control of the silver shop in his name.

One of the skills that distinguished him from other silversmiths was that he was not only an expert smith but also a skilled engraver and one of the few craftsmen who could complete a piece of silver, even to the engraved decoration. The quality of his work made Revere's services much in demand.

In August 1757, Paul married Sarah Orne who bore him eight children, six of whom survived. He became involved with a number of Bostonians who were agitating over British policies in Massachusetts and ultimately joined the Sons of Liberty, a secret citizens group organized in the various colonies to protect against British policies, especially taxation.

Revere began to fashion engravings that were anti-British, the most famous of which portrayed the Boston Massacre. The engraving, a masterpiece of propaganda, had the desired effect on those who saw its reprint in newspapers throughout the colonies. The engraving heightened the growing fear of increased numbers of British soldiers in the colonies and therefore increased fear of British government's meddling in colonial affairs.

Revere's wife Sarah died in 1773 and in October of that year, he married Rachel Walker with whom he would have five more surviving children.

After the Boston Tea Party in December 1773, Revere began work as a messenger for the Boston Committee of Public Safety, often delivering messages to New York and Philadelphia about the political unrest in the city. His messages also took him into the Massachusetts countryside and northward to New Hampshire. By April 1775, Revere was one of the most experienced riders for the Committee.

On the night of April 18, 1775, Boston was rife with rumors concerning the motives of the British redcoats, marshalling throughout the city. Informants warned of an impending march on Lexington to arrest John Hancock and Samuel Adams, two of the most outspoken members of the Sons of Liberty.

From there the redcoats would march to Concord where the colonists had a large store of ammunition. The British relied on cover of darkness and the element of surprise to accomplish this task, one it was believed that would lessen the colonists' chances for rebellion.

Revere and William Dawes, a leather worker who was also a member of the Sons of Liberty, were instructed to ride first to Lexington, warn Adams and Hancock and then to Concord so that the military supplies might be removed. Revere was to cross the Charles River, then take a horse from Charles Town and ride to Lexington. Dawes was sent on the longer route via the Boston Neck and then on to Lexington.

The signal from the steeple of the Old North Church, "one if by land, two if by sea," was not really to inform Revere of the British movement. He was already aware of their plans. The purpose was to get the message through to Charles Town in case both Revere and Dawes were captured.

Revere arrived in Lexington around midnight. Dawes arrived about a half hour later. After discussing the events with Hancock and Adams, the two riders set out for Concord, a distance of about eight miles.

They were joined by Samuel Prescott, a doctor from Concord who was returning there after a visit to a lady friend in Lexington. Halfway to Concord the three riders were detained by British troops.

In a deposition given by Revere to the Provincial Congress after the Battle of Lexington, he had the following to say of their capture.

"In an instant I saw four of them, who rode up to me with their pistols in their hands, said 'G-d d-n you stop. If you go an inch further you are a dead man.' Immediately Mr. Prescot came up. We attempted to get through them, but they kept before us, and swore if we did not turn into that pasture, they would blow our brains out…….They forced us in. When we had got in, Mr. Prescot said 'Put on!' He took to the left, I to the right towards a wood at the bottom of the pasture intending, when I gained that, to jump my Horse and run off afoot. Just as I reached it, out started six officers, seized my bridle, put their pistols to my breast, ordered me to dismount, which I did."

Revere was caught. Somehow, in the confusion both Dawes and Prescott managed to escape. Soon after he broke away, Dawes fell off his horse and was unable to continue. Dr. Prescott broke free in the pasture, jumped a fence, and escaped into the woods. He aroused minutemen along the way and arrived in Concord bringing the first news of the British approach.

After questioning Revere, the British led him back to Lexington, refusing to allow him to hold the reins of his horse. In Lexington, the horse left for Revere had the bridle and saddle cut before the British freed him. In the end, it wasn't important who succeeded in warning the countryside of the British intentions, only that someone did.
Revere served for several years as an officer in the Massachusetts militia.

His military career was somewhat undistinguished and it ended with unsuccessful campaigns against the British in Newport, Rhode Island and the Penobscot Indians.
At the close of the war, Revere resumed his trade of silversmith, which he carried on in connection with a general hardware business. In 1792, he opened a bell and cannon foundry, in the North of Boston.

He was one of the earliest bell casters in America, producing over 900, many that are still being used in churches and courthouses throughout New England. In 1801 Revere became a pioneer in the production of copper plating opening North America's first copper mill. Copper from his company was used to cover the original wooden dome of the Massachusetts State House in 1802. His company re-coppered the bottom of the frigate Constitution in 1803 just before it went into battle against pirates in Tripoli.

His copper and brass works eventually grew, through sales and corporate merger into a large national corporation, Revere Copper and Brass, Inc. After a life of accomplishments, Paul Revere died on May 10, 1818 at the age of 83.

He is buried along with other Bostonian patriots in the Old Granary Burying Ground. Longfellow's poem surely made Paul Revere one of the best known and admired patriots even if he didn't quite accomplish all for which the poet gave him credit. Nevertheless, Revere was a true patriot as dedicated to the cause of freedom as any of his compatriots.
